

Diversity Committee

LIGAYA DOMINGO, Chair

The Diversity Committee “examines the level of diversity in our unions, what pathways and programs exist for developing leaders of color in the labor movement, and works with the Washington State Labor Council constituency groups to help increase union density in our constituency communities.”

Since our last report, the committee conducted a short survey to determine the level of diversity within the Washington state labor community. The respondents were very few but we were able to learn that there is not a lot of knowledge of the diversity within some unions and that there is more work that could be done from union members and leaders to get to know the makeup of their own unions.

Our committee has also been able to do outreach during local cultural fairs. This was a combined effort between Pierce County and King County APRI, CBTU, and LCLAA and other union members. We also recruited community members to attend union job fairs.
