

Thinking about running for public office?

Dozens of union members around Washington state have run for public office after attending PATH TO POWER POLITICAL CANDIDATE TRAINING. The Washington State Labor Council, AFL-CIO — in partnership with our affiliated unions — is hosting another Path to Power candidate training. It will provide union members and local community activists with tools and tips to run a successful political campaign, get elected, and build power that will positively influence our communities.

March 26-28, 2024

in Seattle (location TBA)

Path to Power training is geared toward people interested in running for political office who would like to learn how to run a campaign. It covers fundraising, crafting an effective message, creating a campaign plan, building a campaign team, effective targeting, how to talk to voters, and more.

The staff delivering the training will include political directors, campaign gurus, and elected leaders. Whether you're considering running for school board or city/county government, this training is for you!

Washington State Labor Council, AFL-CIO

To apply, fill out the application here by Monday, Feb. 26: <https://bit.ly/Path-to-Power>

For more information, contact Osta Davis at odavis@wslc.org - 206-817-1124